Affairs-Tommy Gets Even

If ONLY this kind of weather could stay all the year round wouldn't it be wonderful? I think the semicool weather is just ideal. The Philadelphia Cricket Club was a most interesting spot on Saturday afternoon. Quite the largest crowd of the week was there and the finals between Mrs. Mallory fascinating.

Speaking of "lines," of course, you know what that means, don't you? You string some wild words together and use them upon all occasions, and that's your line. Perfectly original, you know, and all that, and It's 'simply scrumptious' when you do get a perfectly original one yourself. Perhaps you think it's "fascinatingly futile," but then if you do, you never were seventeen or eighteen, and never laughed and giggled and whispered with about six other girls, all trying to think up a new ine.

Be that as it may, the tennis as I said was interesting, very, and the onsaid was interesting, very, and the on-lookers were festive in gaily colored sweaters and bright sports hats.

ONE of the debutante parties of the season, in fact the first so far, is the dance which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Benedict will give at their home for Rita Heckscher this evening.

Some persons have been under the impression that Rita Heckscher would not come out on account of the death of Barbara Heckscher last week. But Rita is not a very close relation week.

of Barbara Heckscher last week. But Rita is not a very close relative, you know. Her father and Mr. Ledyard Heckscher are cousius, so Rita and Virginia. who was Barbara's sister, are second or third cousins, I am not sure which. And I do not think there has been any question of deferring Rita's debut. Mrs. Maurice Heckscher, who is related to both Mr. Ledyard and Mr. Stevens Heckscher, naturally recalled her invitations for September 17, but that is the only affair for Rita, which will not, or rather did not, take place. Of course, the Ledyard Heckschers' party next week and, in fact, any en-party next week and, in fact, any en-tertaining on their part is all off and Virginia will not make her debut.

OTTILIE MORRIS will be an at-lovely color. She is a grand-niece of Mrs. Charles Custis Harrison and a cousin of Augusta Harrison, who will also be a debutante this season.

TOMMY, who is three, has a great many aunts and uncles and he greatly appreciates them, even if the uncles do get him puzzled by insisting that "This is Uncle Elsie, and that is Aunt John," mixing him up in his wee mind, accordingly.

However, he got even with them the other day, innocently enough I have no doubt, but even just the same.

As I said, he had had a beautiful time except for the puzzling remarks, and when daddy came to take him home he was not quite sure what to say to them all. He, therefore, compromised by chirping as he went out the door: "Goedbye, ev'ybuddy, you're a gweat ole gang."
